Few competent observers consider that China's "reform" of her penal code genuine; and few doubt that where it does seem to have been acted upon it has been inaugurated with wrong motives and bad results. For excesses of sentimentalism. cant, and even injustice, it is usually unnecessary to look further than to a country's crime and its efforts to cope with it. Few civilized nations in this respect can fairly throw stones at another. The British, who have not long abandoned hanging and transportation for petty offences, have still as much to reform as China has, especially in the way of reaching a proper sense of proportion, making the punishment fit the erime. Ten gears' imprisonment for an offence repugnant to all sane men seems yet far too much if we consider that the evil done is sentimental rather than physical; while a few months for a man who by violence ruins the whole future of a fellow creature is ridiculously inadequate. The punishment of those dishonest financiers and others be more severe. Punishment of either sort. lighter heavy, is never really a deterrent, if experience counts at all; and the ideal would seem to be that it should in all cases be appropriate and inevitable. Recommendations to mercy, usually the result of appearance. It appeared that defendant took sentimentalism, would be unnecessary if the punishments were made to fit the crime, certain conditions which included monthly abolition of capital punishment, by the way, should be condemned to patrol the streets of than a walking-stick. Humanitarians are so inconsistent, so illogical. They will go into hysterics over a "dozen with the cat," while they will cheerfully attack their ham and eggs of a morning without a single pang for the man entering on ten years of prison life. So these cruelly merciful people of the soft heart and watery eye, these Jon TROTTERS of humanitarianism, have induced China to look askance at castigation, or to pretend to. The abolition of judicial torture—not were again to appear before his Worship, but as accomplished, by the way -was a reform | they failed to do so, and also to remove their the outery against the cangue and the They appeared before the magistrate yesterday bamboo, as against the stocks and the " cat " chewhere, was theer sentimentalism. Great was the rejoicing when China talked of abandoning castigation. The news was equally pleasing to criminals and coddlers. A northern contemporary remarks:

"The abolition of flagellation in this Empire was nothing more, and was never intended t be anything more than a pretty pretence on which the Five Travelling High Commissioners should be able to pose before an all-admiring deserted their strongholds, abandoned their forworld as the representatives of a regenerated tifications, left their villages, and fled into the and civilised China. There is only one place in China where the abolition has been carried out, and that place, curiously enough, is the very place where Chineme jurisdiction has longes been in abeyance. In the Report of the Hankow British Concession will be found over and over again the record of blows inflicted, in numbers varying from one to five hundred, and the first step to be taken in Shanghai for the restoration of peace and order should be the return to the use of the bamboo; and that without delay. It would also be well if the use of the stocks be established, the same as it is in Hongkong." Of course the authorities of the native city of Shanghai are no more sentimental than a weasel is. They know that their European neighbours dislike the idea of physical pain troubling the hide of the most callous criminal, and they chuckle to themselves as they let the surprised evenion: malefactor loose again to kill policemen and break and burn property. "Improper to beat these men? Very well. Anything to please you, gentlemen." Truly they may well smile, as they note the Europe in rejoicing over this "symptom of reform." But, as we have previously pointed out their humanitarianism wears thin when they come to deal with a criminal who has conducted his business elsewhere than in the Foreign Settlement. Really, it does not seem altogether fair to blame them too much. The Shanghai Mixed Court exists partly to confirm the European locus stand i and partly to assure the humanitarians that no brutality is practised at their very doors. A -trong Government would have done away with such a dangerous anomaly long ago, and risked the jealousy of other Powers. The Chinese Magistrate sits to represent Chinese sovereignty; the Foreign Assessor to represent Europe's humaner notions. Whether too severe or too lenient, the Chinese Magistrate is bound to offend, and we see no inducement for him to pursue the happy mean. While strongly sympathising with the present troubles of Shanghai, we cannot refrain from pointing out that the public's present outery for greater severity is as upreasonable and sentimental as its tears and rejoicings when one white man who Solo..... had fatally shot another was not hanged as he ought to have been. The peculiar provocation in that case evoked gallons of sentimentalism. When judges and juries bring reason instead of emotion to bear on crime and its punishment, it may be found that China's penal system - apart from official corruption and tyranny-is not so far

MYTHOLOGY AND EDUCATION

" Is the Mythological Dictionary a fit book to place in the hands of the young?" is a question (save Marmaduke in Truth) which will assuredly arouse the anger of most who maintain that a classical education is necessary to polish

This dictionary is little better than an elementary guide to dissipation and divorce, yet most boys are set to study it strenuously. Many of the classics, moreover, which youth is forced to translate, are of so objectionable a character that no publisher of to-day would print one of them were a modern author the writer.

Knowledge of the classics was a sign of learning in the far distant past, when few could even read or write; later, education was slightly more general, and our remote predecessors naturally valued that which those before them thought important—and we continue in the same course. Greek and Tatin are, undoubtedly, most useful languages for certain purposes they train and polish the mind, but they can be taught without the aid of the objectionable literature both possess.

It is one of the inconsistencies of life that, whilst we are endeavouring to remove religious education from our schools, even in State examinations it is generally necessary to be intimately acquainted with the minutest details concerning the pagan religious systems of the Greeks and Romans.

THE "EGYPTIAN DELIGHT" CIGARETTE CASE.

Before Mr. C. D. Melbourne at the Magistracy yesterday afternoon the hearing of the charge preferred against C. H. Kane of the larceny of 100 cases of "Egyptian Delight" tobacco, the property of the British-American Tobacco Co., was continued

Sir Henry Berkeley, K.C., instructed by Mr. M. J. D. Stephens, prosecuted, and Messrs. Siebs, E. Goelz, G. H. Medhurst, A. G. Wood G. K. Hall Brutton and J. H. Gardiner and C. R. Your charged with an offence in the technical form -did steal, take and carry away. Taking and statement of the actual loss caused by the carrying away were essential ingredients of a charge of larceny, while the form of the charge in the case before the Court was "did steal 100 cases." The second point he had to raise was that the goods stolen should be described with such certainty as to enable a jury to decide that the said goods were stolen. With regard to the 100 cases of " Egyptian Delight" tobacco some of the cases were not numbered, and there was nothing to specify that those particular cases were stolen. They might have been 100 empty cases for all that was known, or from what could be gathered from the charge The general rule was that stolen goods were to be described with such certainty as would enable a jury to decide that the goods were stolen. announced the appointment of Major defendant was entitled at any time to know what he was being tried for. The facts had to be sufficiently stated, also the description of the stelen goods, to enable the defendant to answer the charge. The same remarks applied to the four cases of "Three Castle" and one case of "Pirate" cigarettes. The numbers of the cases should have been stated with sufficient exactitude to enable the defendant to meet the charge. The speaker then reviewed the evidence which had resolution suggesting the sale of the | heen adduced, and remarked that the case was iniquitous insumuch as witnesses for the

It should also | meeting. have had the words "take and carry away." and when the case was committed for trial the indictment would be sure to be in that form. When an information was laid before a magistrate the same formality of a technical nature was not required, because in the first. instance the men who dealt with cases were not lawyers but policemen or sergeants. With respect to the allegation that the charge was not specific, it was quite true that it should be in order that a defendant might know what of a navy to the stability of a nation, and he | he had to answer. In this instance it could not hoped that in the near future China would | be made more specific. They said that the man stole 100 cases of "Egyptian Delight" tobacco. We propose at present to rebuild only one of the large piers, and, with a view to economy, are utilising as much of the old wood as is tit for the purpose. As you are well aware it has been our custom to appropriate annually from profits, large sums to write down the book values of your various assets, and the wisdom of this policy is now more than demonstrated. Under the circumstances your Directors have not considered it necessary to make any provision for the wharves and lighters totally destroyed, as the value of those remaining far exceeds their book value. FIRST BOOKSELLER IN EUROPE.

Some interesting particulars of the inception and growth of the "foremost second-hand bookseller's shop in Europe" are supplied by the Reader. The story goes back to the beginning of the year 1847, when the late Mr. Bernard Quaritch, then a young man of twentyseven, was working as porter and general utility man at the establishment of Mr. H. G. Bohn, of York-street, Covent Garden, at a salary of twenty-four shillings a weak. This Mr. Bohn was a bit of a character in his way, and a very enterprising man to boot, for besides being a bookseller he was also a publisher and a bibliographer. He took a great fancy to his young assistant, who never seemed to tire of work, and war, therefore, not a little chaggined when the latter one day announced his intention of leaving him. "But why?" inquired Mr. Bohn. "Where are you going?" "I am going," was the unexpected answer, W. Japan, and a depression appears to be \ "to set up in business in opposition to you."

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed Mr. Bohn loudly Gradients are mostly slight, and mederate | though not ill-naturedly; "you are not lacking variable winds will probably prevail in the self-confidence, young man. Do you not know "Yes," came the pat reply, "I know that; Hougkong rainfall for the 24 hours ending but I am going to be the first bookseller in

"Investor" writes to the North-China Dailu News: - "Now that we are on the eve of another annual general meeting in this company, would it not be apropos that a resolution be adopted to subdivide the shares which are daily becoming more out of the reach of the small investor by the justified enhancement in their market price? This is the premier company here and its position is unique; and, therefore, most of the small investors are eager to have a small holding in it, but on account of the obvious $1,857,872.40 difficulties of securing scrip in small lots, they are forced to put their savings into something else. The (company's boldings are very much underwritten, or, at least, worth much more than their book value. (FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

Tokyo, March 8th. THE STOCK MARKET. During the past week what many observers have anticipated has in a small degree taken place, namely, a slump in the stock market and the consequent heavy fall not only of recognised stocks such as the N.Y.K., but the crash, never to rise again in many cases, of about two score newly-promoted companies. Among these latter may be mentioned the Oriental Brewery Co. floated with the aid of liberal advertising at capital of ten million yen, but which, however, may be regarded as a concern with good prospecis. The right to this new company's stock stood recently at ten yen per share of fifty yen and as the market then looked hopeful, speculators with little to lose obtained the right to blocks of these shares in the hope of selling out lat a profit, Unfortunately, at about this time the failure was announced of the Nagoya Bank with heavy losses, as reported, due to speculation. This event had an immediate effect upon the small investors, many of whom, simple country people, were reported to have been feeding the Tokyo sharks in the hope of quickly doubling their sm ll capital. The flow of capital therefore from this source suddenly stopped. While the Nagoya incident would only frighten this type of investor and the purely speculating element and would not affect established concerns, it still seemed to mark a turning point for the stock market, which up to that date had been weak since the turn of the year. To what extent first-class stocks have declined in the past few weeks may be seen from the following comparison:-

Quotation Quotation Paid up Mar. 6. Jan. 21. Bank of Japan..... Specie Bank100 Bank of Formosa 50 " Hokkaido Colliery 50 Keihin Elec. Ry 50 112 KanegafuchiSpinningCo.40 CONDITIONS OF THE MARKET.

Judging from the above figures it might readily be concluded that the market is now in a healthier state than it was two months agol The genuine investing public has a chance of buying good stock at fair and not abnorma, quotations. N.Y. K, shares at the present price of 112, for example, give the investor a return of about 6 per cent for his money and the position of the N.Y.K. justifies such an investment. The situation is not panicky, excepting for those perishable concerns which are the work of unprincipled promoters who are looking for immediate gain. But, unfortunately, if we are to believe the Japanese papers, it is these which attract the savings of the country people, and their failure will mean ruin to many a rural home. The head of the family, too impatient to wait for the modest return he will get from the soil, goes up to Tokyo and trustfully becomes a shareholder. The chances are that be also becomes a victim. We are assured that there are bundreds of speculating promoters now engaged in taking the money from the country investor and how this countryman who relies largely upon the great names set forth in the published prospectuses, will regard the honour or honesty of Baron this | sort. or that, when he realises that he has lost his money, can easily be imagined. The present boom has shown that the Japanese know the value of having a few titled personages on the promoters' list, and undoubtedly thee names form a strong attraction. A few of the more prominent and titled financiers have been advertised as among the promoters of so many new companies that the matter has attracted public notice. Buron Shibusawa is one of those who have come in for strong criticism. Is the Baron justified in allowing his name to be used as a promoter or advisor of so many companies that it is almost impossible he can give his personal attention to these companies, yet knows that his name carries with it a certain guarantee and will attract subscriptions? This is the question and it raises a point in commercial

INTERESTING COMMERCIAL JUDGMENT. A judgment of some interest abroad and great importance to foreign companies in Japan has just been delivered by the Kobe Chiho Saibansho, the immediate effect of which is to compel limited companies to put by a certain percentage -- one-twentieth -- of their profits to the reserve. The Birano Mineral Water Co. Ltd. was charged with an infringement of the Japanese Commercial Code in not putting by the necessary reserves according to Japanese law, and the company was found guilty, the director being fixed a nominal sum. The point to which attention is directed is the fact that most foreign companies are established under the Hongkong Ordinance and not wittin the jurisdiction of the Japanese Commercial Code in such matters as their Constitution, but the judgement quite alters the conditions of the case, and if the judgment is allowed to stand there would appear to be very little advantage in being registered at Hong-Agents, at 12.15 p.m., on Wednesday, March & Co. have on various occasions conferred kong. With regard to the judgment as it benefits on the China public and none so affects the Hirano Co., when this concern was ransformed into a limited liability company the vendor, Mr. H. E. Reynell, guaranteed a dividend of 10 per cent. For various reasons thereby enabling the smallest man to put business has not been so good as anticipated, and each year Mr. Reynell has had to put his hand into his pocket in order to make up the necessary 10 per cent, for shareholders. AN UNKNOWN EXHIBITION. A recent visitor from Hongkong expressed surprise at the palalial buildings which are now nearing completion in Uyeno Park, the principal public resort in this city, and which will shortly be opened as the Uyone Exhibition. The Hongkong visitor probably found himself alone in knowing anything about the Exhibition, and dropped across it accidentally, as it were, in a visit to the park. Yet it is an ambitious enterprise, in which many foreign exhibitions will participate, but it is almost absolutely unknown to the general public. It has never been advertised as it should be; it never will be advertised. But it will be well patronised nevertheless by this side show loving people. Twenty thousand persons, from the Princes of the Blood downwards, have been invited to the opening coremony. What attracted the notic of the Hongkong visitor was a long and imposing, massive bridge that has been built over the lake bounding the park, and the symmetrical, huge Exhibition buildings which look as if they were intended to last a considerable time and not a few months only. This, as a matter of fact, is the promoters' intention when the Erhibition is closed the buildings will Le used for a permanent bazaar, which it is hoped will become a sort of Mecca for tourists, at which they will be able to purchase everything produced by the country.

Eurosia, a Tale of Shanghai Life, by W. A RIVERS. Kelly and Walsh Ld. ,$1.50.

The author, whose "Angle-Chinese Sketches" established his claims as a competent observer and transcriber of treaty port life, has here essayed the life history of a half-caste girl, the offspring of a Chinese mother and English father. The history follows her only up to her marriage, and it is to be hoped that a sequel will follow, to show us the natural development of such a beginning. The story of Eurasia is not a dry psychological study, by the way; it is full of humour and thrilling incident. The people are all very real, to be met any day of the week, and but for that blessed dispensation which saves us from seeing ourselves as others see us, might make some of us rquirm a little. Mr. Rivers introduces us to the beachcomber, the snob, the m arried flirt, the amah, the Chinese detective, the Chinese oriminal, and a swarm of other people, and when the party is over, so to speak we wish there was more of it. Well written throughout, the story here and there reveals flashes of inspiration, and we have no hesitation in ranking this as one of Mesers. Kelly and Walsh's most worthy publications in the

THE "JENA" The Jenn is one of France's best and biggest battleships affoat, though there are several ships building with the bigger tonnage and stronger armament. She was launched at Brest in September, 1898, and is built of sleel. Her principal measurements are: - Length, 400 feet; beam, 68 feet; maximum draught, 27 feet 6 inches. She displaces 12,052 tons, the only other vessel exceeding her displacement being the Suffer with 12.728 tons. The indicated horse-power of her engines under natural draught is 9,500 and under forced draught 16,500, which gives her a speed of 18.2 knots per hour. She has coal capacity to carry her 7,000 miles at a speed of 10 knots; and is also fitted for oil fuel. Fitted with three sets of four cylinder triple expansion engines, the Jena, has twenty boilers of the Belleville type with economisers. She is heavily armoured, baving a complete belt, rising three feet above the waterline with a maximum thickness of 14 inches and tapering to 6 inches. There is a secondary belt of from 2.3 inch to 47 inch, and an unarmoured gap of three feet between the secondary belt and casemates. Her protected deck is 2h inches, flat on belt; and the splinter deck inch. The Jena carries four 12-inch guns, mounted in couples, in two turrets fore and aft; eight 6.4 quickfirers in the central battery, with 2.7 inch shields; eight 3.9 quickfirers on the superstructure; sixteen 3 pounders. eighteen 1-pounder quickfirers and I-pounder machine; and four torpedo tubes (two submerged). She carries a complement of 700 officers and men, a number exceeded by only one other ship in the French navy—the Suffren, WIRELESS AT 1600 MILES. The Cablenews says :- A fine test of the efficiency of the wireless telegraph stations was made at Jolo recently when a dispatch was received there from a war vessel 1600 miles distant. Captain Hatbaway, chief signal officer department of Mindanao has wired to division headquarters that the Jole operator intercepted two messages between the U.S. S. Chattanooga and the U. S. S. West Virginia, on the evening of March 6. At that time Captain Hathaway was not aware of the location of the ships, so be wired to the chief signal offloor of the division to ascertain the distance from Jolo of these two ships. Major Fechet forwarded the request to Cavite with the following reply from Commander McLean: "1 have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 11th inst, requesting information regarding the place and distance of the U.S.S. Chattanooga and West Virginia on the 9th inst. On the evening of the 9th inst. the Chattanooga was at Shanghai a distance of about 1600 miles from Zamboanga and the West Virginia was off the southern end of Formosa island, a distance of about 1,000 miles from Zamboanga. The other day Captain Langhorne was aboard one of the warships in the harbour and sent a wireless dispatch to another ship lying some distance off and this message was accurately recorded at Zamboanga.

These examples prove the great efficiency of the wireless system and its usefulness in time of war and especially during the typhoon season when the telegraphs and cable lines may be out of commission.

How to BE BEAUTIFUL-Keep your complexion, Mrs. Ellen's Crême Charmant, Lait Charmant and Special Skin Tonic and Poudre Charmant will enable you to do it. Her Specialities for the Skin are the study of a lifetime. A. S. Watson & Co., Ltd., Sole Agents. "SIMPLE LIFE" AT CHICAGO.

Nine women and fifteen men have organised The San Francisco Call in its "Waterfront a "Simple Life" colony, at 1171 Milwaukee to live the new life.

The purposes of the colony, whose members expect it to number hundreds of followers in Chicago within a year, are to live a daily existence devoid of everything nunatural and

"When our colony takes up its complete and rounded life," said Dr. Gluck, "we will have absolutely no use for the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker. Our needs will be few. simple and of such a nature that we will almost entirely supply them ourselves.

"All intoxicants, tobacco, meats, candies, ice, pepper, salt and delicacies are barred from the menu of the simple life advocates. When an individual makes up his mind to come into the colony he must not only agree to do without these articles, but he must agree to dispense with the use of tooth brushes, razors, hair mattresses and a hundred other supposedly useful and necessary articles. "The next point that receives attention at the hands of the simple life advocates is the matter of clothing. The present day attire is tabooed. The members will garb themselves in robes of unbleached linen; their shoes will be made of linen, as well as their hats.

"Rules exacting to the very letter are provided for courtship and marriage. When a man decides be has discovered bis heart's desire he will inform other members. Then a general meeting will be assembled and the members will discuss the fitness of the match. If they think the marriage will prove wise and happy they will vote their approval and the pair will be married by one of the members of the colony.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

"We will burn everything English except now, in many country parts of Ireland, placards are secretly posted on the wells denouncing those who accept service. The nature of these placards may be judged by a recent specimen :-

"Hearken to the words of Father Kavanagh, the Irish Franciscan Patriot Priest, who pronounces it a heinous crime against Irishmen to enter the forces of robber England; and he who engages in one of England's unjust wars is guilty of deadly sin. "Make a vow that you will not recognize or mix with any man who done the livery of an Irish slave-the red or black coat or blue jacket-and keep your children from mixing with this anti Irish horde—the shughterers of the innocaut Boer women and children."

The constabulary tear down these placards whenever they see them, and have made some
